

Innovation services

By developing a national innovation services system, the National Innovation Office supports the implementation of the innovation policy objectives of governmental strategies, including:

- the dissemination of new knowledge and results, and the creation of the conditions of their utilization in the field of research and development;
- the technological renewal, dynamic growth of businesses, and the development of their innovation capability;
- the development of the national/international co-operation and the networking of innovative actors;
- the system-level development of innovative services, improvement of their quality and coherence;
- the improvement of the conditions of effective utilization of innovation funds;
- the support of the social awareness and acceptance of science and technology.

To achieve the above mentioned objectives, the National Innovation Office – regarding its mission defined by the relevant regulation – has started the development of a new, modern and integrated national innovation service system, concerning the best international practices (best practices) and domestic conditions.
